European Super Angels Club is searching for the best SportsTech Startup

The European investor network is hosting its sixth pitching series. Pre-selected SportsTech startups will compete this autumn in national tournaments in Scotland, France, Germany and Switzerland. Out of all national winners, the club will choose the European SportsTech Champion at the finals on November 25.

Vienna | The European Super Angels Club will host its sixth startup awards starting on October 10 until the finals in Vienna on November 25. The focus is this time on SportsTech with pitching competitions taking place in Scotland, France, Germany, Switzerland and Austria. The application for startups and investor registrations are available online via superangels.club/events.

Connecting Europe

"Our awards are focusing on European startups with potential for international success. In early summer, we already selected the 25 most promising Artificial Intelligence solutions from over 1,200 companies. More than 400 investors took part at our event series", says Berthold Baurek-Karlic, founder of Venionaire Capital and President of the European Super Angels Club.

The club, founded by partners of KMPG and Venionaire Capital, is a pan-European co-investment and networking club offering it's members active fund management for syndicated super angels investment.

The awards are supported by Shepherd and Wedderburn in the UK, Deutsche Börse Venture Network, Liechtensteinische Landesbank (Austria), KPMG Austria and many more

SportsTech: Promising future market

SportsTech is the combination of sport and technology, including the digitalisation of the sports industry. "SportsTech is an extremely exciting field. Analysts estimate that this market grows by 14.7 per cent every year, with a global market volume of 28 billion US Dollars", explains Baurek-Karlic.
